Balay Banaag 'House of Hope' in Davao City, Philippines, is a safe place for girls at risk. A residential centre, it provides care, support, education and an opportunity to break the cycle of poverty for girls from families and environments vulnerable to exploitation and abuse. Offering girls a future of dignity, hope and independence, Balay Banaag has been in operation since 2010. From 2018 it has been managed by the Marist Sisters and currently cares for girls studying in Grades 6 to 12. Whilst the Marist Sister in charge of the centre does not draw a wage, she has requested assistance to help meet the expense of employing a house mother, a teacher and a social worker as well as needed repairs to the shower area and kitchen.
